Speaker Bio:

Albert R. Checcio was appointed senior vice president for university advancement in August 2010. In this capacity, he is responsible for overseeing advancement operations and directing USC's relations with the philanthropic and volunteer communities, including prominent individual supporters, charitable foundations, corporate donors and alumni. He reports directly to the president, works closely with the provost and the deans in developing plans and infrastructure to support the university's development ambitions, and staffs the Alumni Affairs Committee of the USC Board of Trustees. He is also charged with organizing and launching the largest fundraising campaign in USC's history.

For five years before joining USC, Checcio was vice president of development and university relations at Fordham University. His previous experience encompasses the design and execution of fundraising campaigns at a number of universities – including American University in Washington, D.C., Temple University in Philadelphia, the University of Pittsburgh and Drexel University – and service as vice president of development at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.
